Ha, yes I always want to tend towards nose-heavy as well. I'm not sure what you mean by the "hexagon line" but my CG is measured from the front edge of the wing not including the last little bit of flare since the manual ignores that. I calculate my CG based on measuring the load on the landing gear and it came out to 49-50mm.

Routing is the mechanism that allows a system to find the network path to another system. A route is a defined pair of addresses which represent the "destination" and a "gateway". The route indicates that when trying to get to the specified destination, send the packets through the specified gateway. There are three types of destinations: individual hosts, subnets, and "default".
