Zona is the rare book that respects the mystery of a film without feeling obliged to dismantle it. Evening Standard. Few books about film feel like watching a film, but this one does. We sit with Dyer as he writes about Stalker; he captures its mystery and burnish, he prises it open and gets its glum majesty. As a result of this book, I know the film better, and care about Tarkovsky even more.

David Thomson (author of The New Biographical Dictionary of Film), The New Republic. In Zona: A Book about a Film about a Journey to a RoomGeoff Dyer delves into the mysteries of a film that has haunted him ever since he saw it thirty years ago: Andrei Tarkovsky's Stalker, which is widely regarded as one of the greatest cinematic works of all time. ("Every single frame," declared Cate Blanchett, "is burned into my retina.")

Zona | Geoff Dyer

Toward the middle of Zona, Geoff Dyer's book-length treatment of Soviet filmmaker Andrei Tarkovsky's film Stalker, the author quotes the French philosopher Maurice Merleau-Ponty. The passage, taken from the obscure theorist's intensely intimidating, 700-page Phenomenology of Perception, is direct and affecting, as though it were written by Kafka. It reads in part, "once I was a man, with a soul and a living body and now I am no more than a being...."

By default, the "Gutter" margin will be set to 0. This could cause issues further on, as the gutter margin is the amount of space between the content of your book and the fold where the pages of the book will be bound together. That said, go ahead and give the gutter a 1" margin, so the content of your book doesn't get lost in the fold.
